Program Statement of Purpose

The Taiwan Intensive Summer Language Program in Taipei, Taiwan will provide eight weeks of intensive Chinese language instruction. The program will take place at Tamkang University (TKU). The curriculum will focus on intensive speaking, listening, reading, and writing practice through 20 class hours of Chinese instruction per week. Students will also participate in a language agreement and strengthen their language skills with locals through activities and excursions designed to reinforce their understanding of Chinese culture and language. The eight-week intensive summer program is equivalent to two semesters of study in the US.

Curriculum Overview

The Chinese Language Center (CLC) at TKU provides a highly demanding, total immersion academic program to Taiwan Intensive Summer Language Program participants. Classes are held five days per week; from Monday to Thursday, participants attend four sessions per day comprised of three lecture or drilling classes and one situational conversation or discussion class. On Fridays, participants attend three sessions comprised of two lecture or drilling classes and one situational conversation or discussion class. Cultural workshops and excursions are scheduled periodically during the program. Participants also receive one hour of personalized instruction each week. Students are required to actively participate in all classes, cultural enrichments, excursions, and ceremonies. Student evaluation will cover attendance and participation, quizzes and tests, midterm and final, oral presentations, and homework.

Policies

Attendance and Participation

Students who miss classes or excursions without a valid medical excuse or other approved reason will be subject to verbal and written warnings and the possibility of lowered grades. Students are required to actively participate in all classes, cultural enrichments, excursions, and ceremonies.

Preparation and Self-Study

This program is highly demanding, and students should expect to spend four to five hours on class preparation and self-study daily. This preparation should include both written and audio texts, as well as vocabulary and sentence patterns.

Completion of Homework

Students are assigned homework in each class and are expected to complete it by the date indicated by their teacher. Instructors factor student work into planning for future classes; timely completion of all assigned homework allows teachers to more accurately gauge student progress and effectively utilize class time. Homework is graded and will factor into students' overall course grades.

Daily Quizzes, Weekly Tests, Midterm & Final Exams

Program Chinese instructors at the Chinese Language Center at Tamkang University will administer all quizzes, tests, and exams. Quizzes focus on new daily materials introduced in class and are held during lecture and drill classes. Weekly tests mainly review what students have learned during the week. The two-hour long midterm and final written exams are to help students review what they have learned during the preceding four weeks. A final oral exam is held in the last week of the program.

Oral Presentation

Students will give two formal oral presentations over the course of the program. Students are required to organize three to five minutes of content and orally present it to their peers in class. All presentations should be reviewed for grammatical errors in collaboration with one-on-one class instructors.

Chinese Language Agreement

Students are required to sign a language agreement and are expected to speak Chinese both to classmates and to teachers throughout the duration of the program. This language agreement requires students to speak only Chinese in the following settings:

- In all program classes
- On the grounds of the program institute (including in hallways and cafeterias)
- On group excursions and trips
- With other program students
- With their host families/roommates
- With their language partners
- When speaking with local staff, officials, and teachers

(1.0 units of Bryn Mawr College academic credit — 4 undergraduate credit hours)

CNSE 541: Intermediate Chinese Speaking and Listening

(1.0 units of Bryn Mawr College academic credit — 5 graduate credit hours)

This course is designed for those who have previously studied one academic year of Mandarin Chinese at the university level and have already achieved some intermediate fluency in Chinese communication skills. This course aims to help students develop mastery of colloquial language and daily conversation skills and focuses on conversation, presentation, listening, and drilling through practical usage and content while discussing topics including the following themes:

- Expressing admiration for others and responding to compliments
- Asserting knowledge in certain areas
- Describing clothing features and suitable occasions
- Expressing gratitude in different ways when receiving gifts
- Describing disaster scenarios and how to avoid them
- Persuading others to accept invitations
- Describing pleasant and unpleasant travel experiences
- Commenting on others' attire
- Simulating interview scenarios for brief self-introductions and self-analysis of strengths/weaknesses
- Outlining the convenience and cautionary aspects of cloud technology
- Briefly discussing current events, such as a global food crisis

This course includes a daily lecture and drill session focusing on conversation and discussion patterns. Through this course, students develop and improve their interpersonal, interpretive, and presentational skills in a variety of authentic contexts and situations through meaningful conversation, oral presentations, speeches, and debates. All discussion topics reinforce content introduced in lecture and drill sessions.

CNSE 202: Intermediate Chinese Grammar, Reading, and Writing

(1.0 units of Bryn Mawr College academic credit — 4 undergraduate credit hours)

CNSE 542: Intermediate Chinese Grammar, Reading, and Writing

(1.0 units of Bryn Mawr College academic credit — 5 graduate credit hours)

This course is designed for those who have previously studied one academic year of Mandarin Chinese at the university level with exposure to some intermediate-level vocabulary and grammar patterns. In this course, students learn fundamental intermediate Chinese vocabulary and patterns while reading a variety of intermediate-level texts. Students are expected to learn approximately 900 new words and 80 new grammar patterns. Regular assessments include daily quizzes, weekly tests, homework, and class participation.

In addition to a daily lecture and drill session, this course also includes a daily reinforcement instruction class. In this session, students will improve their reading and speaking abilities according to their individual needs and interests. Teachers will provide corrections of students' language output as well as work closely with students to refine written projects, oral presentation drafts, field tasks, exams, and homework.
